Four Basic Carry Positions With Additional Options!

Standard carry >>>>> shoot Military Backpack American

Standard - The inner loop is the key to Sure-Shot-Sling. Pull up on the loop lock releasing the strap. Adjust the loop, make it 6" long from the bottom of the gun. Press down on the lock loop securing the strap in place. Pull on the outer strap from the butt end of the gun to make a larger outer loop (refer to picture on the upper right). Place your right arm through the loop then over your head. The gun will rest across your chest as shown in diagram above. Adjust the inner loop so that the slide hits your collar bone. This is the standard position. To shoot, lift the gun straight up twelve inches then aim. If the motion isn't smooth try making the inner loop larger until shooting motion is smooth or smaller if you can't get the gun to hang from your shoulder without holding it .

Military - Wear your sling in the standard carry position slip your arm out of the sling so that your sling hangs on your neck. Rotate your gun so that your muzzle is pointed down. Now slip your opposite arm through the outer loop. Adjust the inner loop so that if you stack both of your fist on top of each other and on top of the butt of your gun you will just touch your chin.

Backpack - Use the same inner loop size for the backpack position. This time pulling on the outer top strap. Place the gun on your shoulder as shown in the picture above. Adjust inner loop to your preference.

American - Make the inner loop 12" long and place it over your shoulder as shown above. Adjust inner loop to your preference.

Storage position - To keep the sling out of the way while storing it in your gun safe, truck or anywhere else. unlock the loop lock and slide it up to the top of the forearm then lock in place.
